ALMAGUIN – Residents are invited to attend this year's annual students versus OPP hockey game on Dec. 2 and help support two worthwhile charities.

On Friday, Dec. 2, at 1 p.m., the Almaguin Highlands OPP is playing a hockey game against Grade 7 and 8 students in the area at the Armour, Ryerson and Burk's Falls Arena.

The event is an annual one to raise money for United Way and this year the event will also support Push For Change. Push For Change is a national awareness campaign to help end youth homelessness. Joe Roberts, a former street youth turned successful entrepreneur began pushing a shopping cart 9,000 kilometres across Canada to raise awareness. Funds raised during this game will be shared equally between this program and United Way.

OPP would like to invite community members to come and watch the exciting game and support these two worthy charities.
