Two inspiring brothers in Kenora are joining in the Push for Change campaign.

Seth and Caleb Marquis known as the "Philanthro-Bros" have been fundraising for the Push for Change Campaign here in Kenora.

Seth says they decided to sell coloring books as a way to raise money.

"It kind of just popped in our heads, we saw it on the Internet and we were like oh let's see what this is."

The brothers have a goal of raising 1000 dollars for the campaign.

Seth adds he enjoys being able to help out a good cause.

"It's just a fun thing to do, it's really fun to do everything and raise money for people."

The brothers will be walking with Joe Roberts when he arrives in Kenora.

Roberts says it's young people like them who inspire others.

"To see and be inspired by what the Philanthro Bros are doing, it's a snippet of what we are seeing right across this country."

The brothers will walk with Joe 3.8 km from Canadian Tire to the OPP Station when he gets here on Thursday.
